Celebrating America's heroes U.S. Army Soldier Show set for Aug. 26

By Harriet Rice

U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center Public Affairs

Ron Smith is challenged.

As artistic director of the United States Army Soldier Show, he has six weeks — from unpacking to opening night — in which to transform 25 of the Army's most talented soldier-singers and dancers from virtual strangers into lockstep, polished, stage performers.

But Ron Smith can do it. He's done it three times before, and he'll do it again. He won't do it alone. This is a labor of love for the entire Army Entertainment Division augmented by musical director Dennis Buck, choreographer Ken Roberson, and costumer Sue Frazier.

Ron, Dennis, Ken and Sue don't know it, and they probably wouldn't own up to it, but they are all heroes, just like the soldiers they morphed into the cast and crew of the 1999 U.S. Army Soldier Show, aptly titled A Tribute to America's Heroes.

An American musical hero, Irving Berlin, started it all when, as an Army sergeant during World War I, he wrote and staged his first musical, Yip, Yip, Yaphank, that opened in 1918.

Today, 81 years later, a new generation of soldiers carries on his tradition of "entertainment for the soldier, by the soldier," rapping and singing more current tunes like Wake Me Up Before You

The 1999 U.S. Army Soldier Show is scheduled for Aug. 26, 8 p.m., at Barker Theater, adjacent to the post exchange on the Presidio of Monterey Annex. Admission is free.

Go-go and Baby, One More Time, two of the 39 songs in this year's U.S. Army Soldier show — the 16th version of the modern show that used to be called Rolling Along in the 1940's and 50's.

While the sounds and lyrics are hipper, the smiles and laughter generated by music and dance across the non-existent footlights are still the same.

It's a morale booster, period.

Tips discourage raccoons from staying on property

By Alexander Kerekes

Chief of Police, Presidio of Monterey

Raccoons are found in all types of habitats. We usually associate them with riparian or wetland regions. But over the years, we have changed their habitats into our living spaces, and they have had no problem adapting to our lifestyles and do not fear people like many other wild animals.

At one time they found housing in piles of stone, fallen trees, or holes in the banks or creeks. Now those nesting places have been replaced with att spaces under ou hot tubs, decks, sheds, and storn drains. Water sources, such as the numerous creeks and springs, in our area have been replaced by water dishes for pets, swimming pools, and ponds. Thus, we have problems with them claiming back "our" space for their own.

Consequently, raccoons topple garbage cans, nest in attics, roll back lawns for food, prey upon pond life, and are even intrepid enough to come into our homes. Remember, prevention is the key to avoiding problems with raccoons.

Being nocturnal animals, raccoons roam properties at night, looking for insects, fruits, vegetables, acorns, seeds, fish, and small mammals. They are seasonal eaters and prefer fish, crayfish, and small mammals in the spring. During the other seasons, they feed upon acorns, seeds, fruits, vegetables, insects, and other invertebrates. Raccoons breeding season is January to March. Gestation is typically 63 days and litters average from three to six young.

How can you discourage this behavior from occurring on your property?

It is important that you check your property regularly to insure that screens, barring entrance into your home or basement, are intact. Make sure there are no holes in your eaves for access into the attic. Close the areas around decks, hot tubs, and shed. Raccoons are great rodent predators and often follow mice and rats into these kinds of areas.

❑ Place ammonia stations around your yard wherever the raccoons frequent. To do this, take a shallow dish or bowl, place a rag in it and pour ammonia over the rag until completely saturated. Place enough ammonia in the dish so the rag will continue to wick it up throughout the night. Avoid lawn areas, as the ammonia will burn the lawn.

❑ Pick up all of your outdoor pet's food dishes before it gets dark. Replace them with an ammonia station. Lock dog and cat doors to keep raccoons from entering your garage or home, and place an ammonia station in front of the locked door.

❑ Raccoons will push garbage cans over to pop the lids off, especially the plastic trash cans. Use a metal can and secure the top with a thick rubber strap with hooks on the end, available at most hardware stores. You can also secure the can to a fence.

❑ Raccoons often dig for grubs and worms. A gardener or nursery can advise you about a treatment to prevent grubs from living beneath your lawns. Placing piles of cayenne pepper in the place the raccoons dig may discourage them. Using a wild animal repellent such as Ropel, available at most hardware stores, may also be effective.

❑ For a pond, horizontally submerge wire mesh around the circumference of the pond. Attach the outside circumference of the mesh to the edge of the pond, leaving the inside free. This way the fish have the center of the pond open and the raccoon cannot reach over the wire because it is unstable and they tend not to stand on it. Placing a "hot" or electric wire around the perimeter of the pond will discourage not only raccoons, but neighborhood cats. It can be made removable so family members can enjoy the pond during the daylight hours.

❑ Metal guards, 18 inches or wider, wrapped around trees five or six feet above the ground, will deprive raccoons of access to nearby rooftops and other buildings.

❑ If you have a raccoon who has established itself under your home, first find all the entrances and exits. Block all of them off except one. Place a radio near where the animal is nesting and keep it on loud during the day. Place ammonia stations near the same spot. If the nesting area is not accessible, try placing the ammonia stations at each of the air vents in the foundation.

Remember to leave an escape route for the animal. To know if the raccoon has left, sprinkle flour at the exit and watch for footprints that lead away from the exit. When you are sure the animal is gone, seal it up securely.

IMPORTANT. If you have a female with babies, be sure to give her extra time to relocate her entire family before you seal up the entrance. Do not lock the mother out. The young may die, leaving you with a smelly mess or, more likely, the mother will return to retrieve her young causing damage to your home.

Raccoons prefer to live the easy life and don't like to be in a hostile environment. Often once you start using the deterrents they move away.

Peninsula Humane Society does not trap or relocate healthy animals.

Disaster preparedness faire set for Saturday

Army Community Service will present a disaster preparedness faire Saturday, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., at the Stilwell Community Center.

Titled "Shake, Rattle and Roll: Are You Prepared," the disaster fair will have agencies and companies participating who will share information about survival and response in disaster situations.

Among the participants are the American Red Cross, North County Fire Department, Pacific Gas and Electric, Monterey Weather Service, Monterey Emergency Services, SPCA of Monterey County, Naval Postgraduate School Amateur Ham Radio Club, redshift.com with Y2K info, NPS Fire Department and the Pacific Grove Fire Trailer.

Free flashlights will be given to the first 150 arrivals, one per family, and ACS will offer other door prizes. For more information, contact ACS at 242-7660.

Project Kidcare event set for Saturday

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service Main Store on the Presidio of Monterey Annex will host Project Kidcare Saturday, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Project Kidcare offers standardized Kidcare photo identification and fingerprints of children, which can be useful to the police if the event the child is lost or missing. AAFES can accommodate the first 125 children who attend.

Public meeting scheduled for Tuesday

The U.S. Army invites the public to attend a meeting Tuesday, 6-9:30 p.m. at the Post Chapel Activities Room, Building 4280 on North South Road, Presidio of Monterey Annex. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the environmental cleanup activities on the former Fort Ord.

The public may attend, make comments and ask questions about the cleanup activities.

Representatives from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, California EPA Department of Toxic Substances Control and the California Regional Water Quality Control Board will also be available to discuss the Fort Ord Environmental Cleanup Program.

For more information, call Lyle Shurtleff at 393-9691.

Family Team Building classes begin Tuesday

Armed Forces Family Team Building classes are part of a training program designed for family members to promote independence and self-reliance – especially when the military member is away.

Level II, middle management, classes are scheduled for Tuesday, Thursday, and Aug. 20, 8:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. at the Presidio of Monterey Annex Chapel.

Topics include enhancing relationship building; management skills; meeting, time and conflict management; military protocol; adapting to change and stress management; and group dynamics. Free onsite childcare is available.

Classes are open to all military members, regardless of rank or branch of service. To register for a class and to reserve on-site childcare, contact Army Community Service at 242-7510.

Fort Ord CDCEC Reunion 2000 meeting Tuesday

Service members, federal employees, or their survivors, formerly assigned or attached to the former Fort Ord Combat Developments Command Experimentation Command are invited to attend a reunion 2000 planning meeting Tuesday at the General Stilwell Community Center at 6 p.m. For more information call Ray Dandridge at 394-7793.

Anger management class starts Aug. 19

An anger management class, sponsored by the Naval Postgraduate School Family Service Center is scheduled for Aug. 19, 4:30-6 p.m., at Aiso Library, Presidio of Monterey. For more information or to register, call the Family Service Center at 656-3060.

Conference representative needed by Aug. 20

The 16th Annual Headquarters Department of the Army Family Action Plan Conference is set for Nov. 13-19, in the Washington, D.C. area. Army Community Service is seeking a representative from the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center to be the installation's delegate to this conference.

The delegate must have participated in the 1998 Presidio of Monterey AFAP Symposium, be able to attend the November conference, and be willing to brief the chain of command with assistance from ACS.

Applications are due by Aug. 20. For more information, contact Kevin Moore at ACS, 242-7660.

Smoking Cessation class begins Aug. 23

The next Smoking Cessation class begins Aug. 23 at 3:30 p.m. and continues Aug. 26, Aug. 30 and Sept. 2 at 4 p.m.

Active-duty service members must attend all four classes to receive nicotine replacement patches. Civilian employees and their spouses may attend as space permits; however, civilians cannot receive the nicotine replacement patches in these classes.

To reserve a spot, call Lorna Fisher, at 242-6962.

Family Service Center holds potluck Aug. 26

The Naval Postgraduate School Family Service Center will hold an Exceptional Family Member Potluck Aug. 26, 6-8 p.m. at the General Stilwell Community Center. Families with special needs children are invited. Call 656-3488 to make reservations.

Other ongoing classes include Thinking for Children for children ages 7-11, Tuesdays, 2:45-4 p.m. at the Naval Family Service Center, Bldg. 2

Post-wide yard sale set for Sept. 11, registration continues Wednesday

The next post-wide yard sale is scheduled for Sept. 11, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. in the parking area off 8th Avenue and Joe Lloyd Way across from Self Help/Lawn Care Center.

Organizers will conduct registration at the Mayoral Program Office located in Stilwell Community Center, Presidio of Monterey Annex. Individuals must register in person for the yard sale and only during the following four remaining periods: Wednesday, 6-7:30 p.m.; Aug. 25, 6-7:30 p.m.; Sept. 1, 6-7:30 p.m.; and Sept. 10, 5-7 p.m.

Fees are $5 for active duty and family members residing on POM Annex and $10 for all others including active duty military members residing off post, retirees, and general public. There are 186 spaces available on a first-come, first serve basis.

To attend the yard sale, after entering the main gate, proceed straight to North-South Road and make a right. Take North-South Road to the intersection of Gigling Road, make a left. Proceed on Gigling Road to 8th Avenue, make a left. Continue on 8th Avenue to the first right, which will be Joe Lloyd Way. Signs will mark the route.

Call the Mayoral Program for details or to volunteer at 242-5056.

and The Moms Helping Moms Group, Tuesdays, 10-11 a.m. at the General Stilwell Community Center. Call 656-3488 for more information.

Havest Wine Tasting scheduled for Aug. 27

The annual Harvest Wine Tasting, hosted by the Naval Postgraduate School Officers Students' Spouses' Club and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, is scheduled for Aug. 27, 7-9 p.m. in the Barbara McNitt Ballroom at NPS. The party continues downstairs with dancing in the El Prado Room from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the sounds of "Slap Happy."

Along with California wineries and breweries, local chocolatiers and gourmet shops have been invited to participate. The event will include a silent auction with all sorts of items to bid on.

Tickets are $26 per person and will be on sale at the NPS Information, Tickets and Tours office, located in Herrmann Hall, from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. weekdays, and in the NPS Quad Thursdays, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Volunteers are also needed to help with the event. Individuals who would like to become involved or want more information should call Janet Carlson at 375-9523.

Charity adult spelling bee set for Sept. 23

Are you a good speller with a fairly large vocabulary? Join a Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center and Presidio of Monterey team in the Adult Spelling Bee, Sept. 23, 6-9 p.m. in Modesto.

The four-person team entry fee of $300, or $75 each, is a charitable tax deduction and raises money to support children's programs, literacy, and enhanced access to technology at various library sites.

Active duty military members, Reservists, civilian employees, and family members are welcome. Spellers may use this competition as a warm-up for the Pacific Grove Library's Adult Spelling Bee in March. Individuals may also sponsor the team by donation. If interested contact Dave Riddle at 242-6383 or e-mail to riddled@pom-emh1.army.mil.

"Just for soldiers to be able to sit back in the audience, look up on stage and say, 'Wow! There is more than just shooting an M-16, going out to the field, and a bunch of paperwork.' You know there are opportunities out there that are endless," says Pfc. Joseph Chainey, a forward fire support specialist with an armored unit at Fort Carson, Colo., and a member of this year's cast.

It's a morale boost not only for the spectators, but also for the performers.

"I think it's very important for soldiers to know, that, in times of war, life still goes on and there's something to look forward to," added Chainey. "It's not the end just because they're away in Bosnia or Kosovo."

It's the same at the end of every show: the cast in their dress blue uniform with gleaming brass, the fireworks, the cheering crowd on its feet. From May to November, as these soldiers perform for more than 100,000 soldiers, civilians and families at 63 locations in 24 states and Korea, they will become minor celebrities and major ambassadors for the military as they "connect" mainstream America to the Army, carrying out one of Secretary of the Army Louis Caldera's key missions to the doorstep of the new millennium.

But the job is not all glam. It's grinding hard work.

They'll load and unload 119 times, lifting more than a million pounds on this road tour, each time installing 100 theatrical lights and laying four miles of cable. The performers are the stage crew.

When the curtain goes up on opening night, Ron, Dennis, Ken, and Sue will be proud. Their bodies might be in the theater seats, but their hearts and souls will be on the stage, filled with pride at how "their" soldiers have grown and blossomed in six short weeks.

The 1999 U.S. Army Soldier Show, is a production of the Army Entertainment Division and is an Army Morale, Welfare, and Recreation program of the United States Army Community and Family Support Center, sponsored in part by USPA & IRA and Gillette.

Program provides victim advocates to assist survivors of domestic violence

By Harriet Rice
Army News Service

For information on local programs, contact the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center and Presidio of Monterey Family Advocacy Program at 242-7653 or 242-7660.

Victims of domestic violence in the Army often feel desperate, isolated, afraid to tell anyone what's happening. Sometimes they feel "The System" works against them, rather than for them.

But now installations are working to give victims of abuse a voice. Victim advocacy is the fastest growing aspect of the Army's Family Advocacy Program.

"The safety of the victim is a priority concern of the Army," said Brig. Gen. Craig Whelden, commander of the U. S. Army Community and Family Support Center, the agency responsible for MWR, which includes FAP.

"You often hear the phrase 'We recruit soldiers, but we retain families.' That's precisely why taking care of families is so important to the Army. We have a moral obligation to families and to victims of spouse abuse — an obligation that's reflected in Army victim values," Whelden stressed.

Although there are no special funds set aside for victim advocacy, installation FAP managers are reprogramming existing money to start the program. This year's FAP budget totals $39 million, more than nine times what it was 15 years ago.

"We've always encouraged FAP staff to establish victim advocacy, but we began to give it special emphasis in 1998," said Delores Johnson, the Army's FAP manager at the USACFSC. "Fort Polk was one of the first installations to reprogram some of their FAP budget to fund a victim advocate program. We're encouraging all installations to follow their example."

At Fort Polk, the victim advocacy coordinator is a paid position; the advocates are volunteers. To qualify, volunteers must have two years working in a domestic violence program. They can be military family members or civilians from the local community. All are screened prior to being accepted on staff. Currently, other installations that have established, or are in the process of establishing, victim advocate programs are Forts Monmouth, Belvoir, Myer, Bragg, Drum, Gordon, Stewart, and Meade.

Whether paid staff or volunteers, victim advocates receive intensive training prior to assisting victims. They must fully understand the military system and know what steps to take to ensure victims' safety. They refer victims to civilian agencies; they may even go with them to appointments.

Victim advocates also sit in on the local Case Review Committee as an advocate for the victim. The advocate acts as a go-between — a liaison — between the victim and the community.

"We know that in communities where there are victim advocates, cases are handled more succinctly and with more compassion for the victims needs; commanders are more involved in the process," said Johnson.

One of the things a victim advocate can do is accompany the victim to the unit to speak to the commander, an experience that can be very intimidating, if not frightening. The advocate helps the spouse prepare for the visit, stays with her during the visit, and, if necessary, interprets the commander's response and explains the procedures that must be followed.

When police are called to the scene of a domestic incident, they will call the victim advocate after things calm down. The spouse may be too afraid or upset to talk to the police; the presence of a victim advocate is less threatening.

The victim advocate gains the confidence of the victim so the victim can talk about what happened and be assured of compassion and understanding. Then the victim advocate serves as a bridge between helping agencies and the victim.

But victim advocates aren't only for reaction after violence has taken place. Spouses who feel threatened or who see their relationships deteriorating to a dangerous level can also call on victim advocates to help prevent abuse.

The victim advocate explains to spouses how domestic violence occurs, what the dynamics are and assures spouses they're not alone — that's one of the biggest fears victims have: that "This is only happening to me." Victim advocates can refer spouses to one of the FAP prevention programs.

If there is no victim advocate program on the installation yet, spouses who fear for her own or their children's safety can contact the installation FAP staff prevention specialists through Army Community Service. They can help the family find shelter off post or take other appropriate action.

The victim advocate program is not widespread enough across the Army for the information to be included in Army Family Team Building classes, said Johnson. "But we are working as rapidly as possible to establish programs at every installation."

ROTC assumption of command

Headquarters, 3rd Brigade, 4th Region, Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps, ROTC, will conduct an assumption of command ceremony Aug. 18, 2 p.m. at Soldier Field, Presidio of Monterey.

Col. Hector Topete will assume command of the Third Brigade from Lt. Col. Bryan Berg. As commander, Topete will take charge of 18 senior ROTC battalions and 115 junior ROTC battalions on college and high school campuses in California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah.

More than half the current active Army general officers are products of the ROTC system, as were well-known retirees such as Gen. Colin Powell, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and General of the Army George Marshall.

Fort Clayton closes in Panama

The U.S. Army's presence in Panama officially came to a close with the casing of the colors during ceremonies on the Fort Clayton parade ground July 30.

Marine Gen. Charles Wilhelm, commander in chief of the U.S. Southern Command, based in Miami, passed in review of a few more than 100 soldiers and as many civilians still based at Fort Clayton with U.S. Army-South. The remainder of the command has already departed and begun establishing its new headquarters at Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

The ceremony ended nine decades of continuous Army presence in Panama. The United States will turn over U.S. bases and ranges to Panama when the 1977 canal treaty takes effect Dec. 31.

Air Force Intern Program

The Air Force Intern Program provides a unique and prestigious opportunity for 50 junior captains to increase their knowledge of leadership and the application of air and space power. The program develops tomorrow's leaders using a combination of hands-on experience in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Office of the Secretary of the Air Force, Joint Staff and Air Staff with graduate level academic courses in leadership and management.

With approximately 500 nominees competing for 50 slots, competition is extremely keen. Senior raters can nominate 10 percent of their eligible captains to compete.

The next intern program selection board is scheduled to convene Dec. 13. Nomination packages must reach AFPC by Oct. 15. There are several other key dates which can be provided by local military personnel flights or by visiting the AFPC home page at "www.afpc.randolph.af.mil" then clicking on officer professional military education.

Army begins new degree-granting program based in military training

By Gerry J. Gilmore

Army News Service

The Army will align its education assistance program with existing enlisted schooling to provide soldiers the opportunity to obtain a college degree based upon military job training and experience.

The pilot program, which began last August, now features two military occupational specialty-specific associate degree programs, said Dr. David Eyler, the associate director of Service Members Opportunity Colleges, a contractor that provides educational services to Department of Defense military personnel. SOC is part of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

"SOC Army degrees [SOCAD] is a long-established program ... but this new program, implemented as a pilot last August, involves the award of guaranteed college credit for training and experience in specific military occupational specialties, while working toward a degree," said Eyler.

Essentially, soldiers will be able to translate their MOS background into a college degree, said Education Services Specialist Louie Chartier. The system will establish a working relationship between Army training schools and colleges.

Awarding college credit through the new program will involve no guesswork, said Chartier, as credits will be awarded at certain MOS skill levels. Soldiers can look at "degree builder" plans dedicated to their military jobs. Soldiers at remote sites or on deployed status could take courses and tests via the Internet. College Level Examination Program and other national testing programs and Federal Aviation Administration and similar licensure and certification exams will also be taken into consideration for college credit.

"The 'degree builder' shows the guaranteed options for gaining the credit," said Chartier. "This will make it easier for soldiers to get college degrees in the service, over time.

Eyler noted that not every MOS is included in the new program at this time. A pilot program, for one of two aviation MOS degree programs that began in August 1998 in the BNCOC program at the U.S. Army Aviation Logistics School at Fort Eustis, Va., is now complete, he said.

"The two degrees cover 15 MOSs in aircraft maintenance (Career Management Field 67)," said Eyler. "Then, we have two degree programs developed for the medical career management field; 91A (medical equipment repairer) and 91P (radiology)."

Development work is now underway for 91V (respiratory therapy), he said, while program managers are also surveying administration (CMF 71) and information systems (CMF 74).

"Every counselor who has access to the Web (www.soc.aascu.org) can download degree builders to work with each soldier," he said. Soldiers in the MOSs for which degree builders currently exist can enroll at the nearest Army Education Center.

Visit the Education Center

LOCATION:

Building 630, Presidio of Monterey

TELEPHONE:

242-5325 or 242-5866

Hours: Monday and Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Wednesday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed for lunch, 1-2 p.m. daily.

CLEP available to earn college credit

The College-Level Examination Program is the most widely used credit-by-examination program today, with almost 3,000 accredited colleges granting credit for satisfactory scores. As service members, there is no charge to "CLEP" out of introductory college-level courses they either took in high school, learned in the service, or pursued on their own. With higher than average academic skills, many Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center students may be able to earn at least one year of college credit, which many colleges offer for successful scores. Preparatory materials are available.

GRE, GMAT funding policy

Computer based Graduate Management Admission Tests and the general Graduate Record Exams taken and paid by service members at civilian test centers may have the expense reimbursed by DANTES beginning Oct. 1. Rescheduling, cancellation and "no-show" fees for the GMAT or GRE will not be reimbursed by DANTES. The GRE Subject tests only remain paper-and-pencil exams available through Military test centers, including the Presidio of Monterey Education office, for the foreseeable future. GRE Subject tests at DANTES test centers will continue to be free on a one-time basis for the military.

Change in tuition assistance policy

Tuition Assistance is provided only for courses offered by postsecondary institutions accredited by a national or regional accrediting body recognized by the Department of Education. This change went into effect Feb. 3. A web site lists the accrediting agencies Department of Education recognizes: www.ed.gov/offices/OPE/Students/Accred.html.

Graduate School Directory

The Graduate School Directory at "www.gradschools.com/search.html" is a simple, easy to use site with 45,907 program listings. The search program allows viewers to select an academic area of interest and then choose the geographical area of interest. The resulting institutional listing provides information such as names, addresses, phone/fax numbers, degrees offered, and links for financing details.

Monterey County Chapter American Red Cross

Want to place an ad?

Explanation of classified ad policy

The following information is provided to explain and clarify policy for individuals who would like to publish classified ads in POM-Mart.

Military members, retirees and Department of Defense civilian employees with valid identification cards are authorized to place classified ads in the Community News.

To place an ad in the Community News, complete the form on the back page of the Community News and deliver it to the Public Affairs Office, Building 614, Room 142, Presidio of Monterey, 93944. Ads may also be sent via e-mail to the editor at wright@pom-emh1.army.mil. Individuals should be sure to include all information requested on the form, including the category of the ad.

Daytime work telephone numbers are for use by Community News staff only; they will not be listed in ads. Individuals may place up to three ads in different categories per issue. Each ad should not exceed 35 words; itemized property for sale should be valued at least $10.

The Community News staff will make every effort to publish ads accurately, but we reserve the right to edit ads to meet readability, format and space requirements. Report typographical errors to the editor, and they will be corrected in the next available issue.

Acceptable classified ads include items in the categories of Autos; Motorcycles; Trucks, Vans, Sport, RVs; Wanted; Sports Equipment; Entertainment, Music Items; Computers and Accessories; Lost and Found; Miscellaneous; Pets or Household Items. Items must be for one-time sale or for free – not for a profit-sharing venture of multiple items. The Community News does not take responsibility for items advertised.

Classified ads for businesses, rentals, free information, help for hire or tutoring, or illegal items are not authorized. Each ad will be published in three consecutive issues unless it is renewed or cancelled.

The date the ad was first published is printed in parentheses following each ad. For example, ads dated (07-30) will continue to run through the Aug. 27 issue. Classified ads may be renewed or cancelled by phone; however, new ads, additions or major changes to ads must be done in writing before the Wednesday deadline for the next issue. Deadlines are generally a week and a half prior to the next publication. When calling in reference to an ad, be sure to identify the category, first few words of the ad, phone number as printed and the date following the ad.

Deadline for the Aug. 27 issue is Wednesday; deadline for the Sept. 10 issue is Sept. 1.

Please refer questions concerning this policy to the editor of the Community News at the Public Affairs Office, at 242-5104 or 242-6426.
